
FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, TAYLORSVILLE, N. C.

TPC in 1920s, 1970s, and 2010s
Charlotte Daily Observer—1911

irst choose what to print: image only, image and citation, or citatio ut, making sure your printer settings match. Then click your brows

s Not of Leaps and bounds Variety but Rather of the Steady Kind-Charlotte Daily Observer; Date: 08-13-1911; Page: [1]; Location
f are copyrighted by NewsBank and/or the American Antiquarian Soc

VILLE GROWING.

of Leaps and Bounds Rather of the Steady
terians to Build Hand-
—Union Sunday School
ght Continues Un-

Observer.

Aug. 12.—Taylorsville
by leaps and bounds, improving. Several are in course of con-others are being repainted.

The Presbyterians of the town have decided to erect, in the place of the old frame building in which they have been worshiping for over fifty years, a larger and more imposing structure of brick. They have about $4,000 subscribed and at a congregational meeting, to be held Sunday next, a building committee will be appointed to take the matter in hand and push the work to completion.

The several Sunday schools of the Taylorsville Presbyterian Church

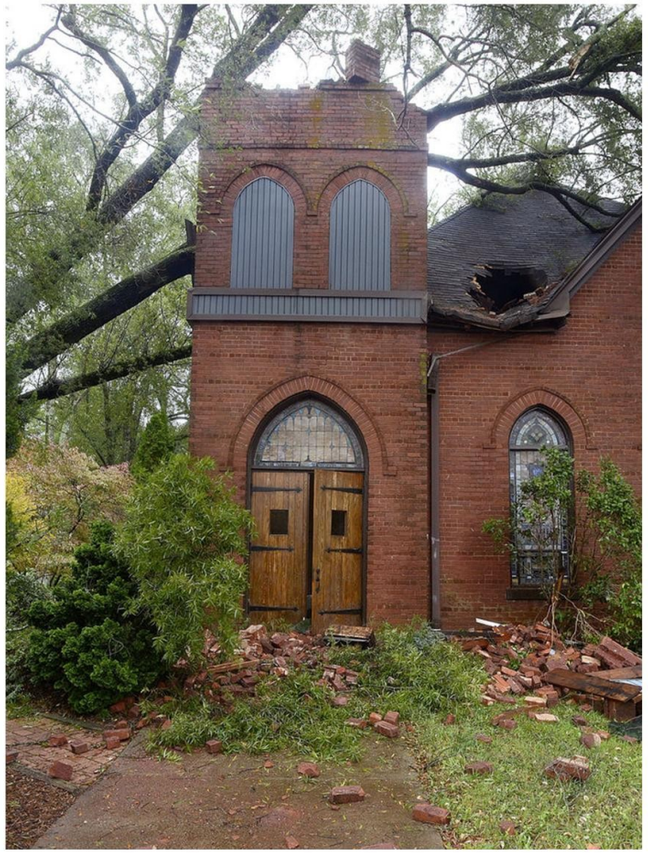
Sanctuary Re-dedication

October 2, 2016

In the early morning hours of October 3, 2015 a massive willow oak tree was toppled onto the church bell tower by a violent overnight storm. Extensive damage was done to the tower and sanctuary forcing the congregation to worship in the fellowship hall building for almost a full year while repairs were made to the church building. The church family remained steadfast in worship, praise, and service to the Lord during this time and is now rejoicing at returning to the newly repaired and refurbished sanctuary. Thank you for being with us today as we re-dedicate our sanctuary to God.

May the favor of the Lord our God be on us.
Establish us for all we do.
Psalm 90:17

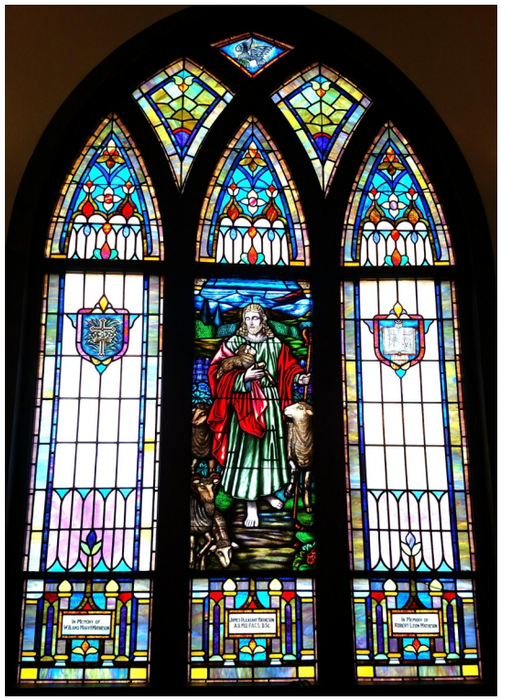


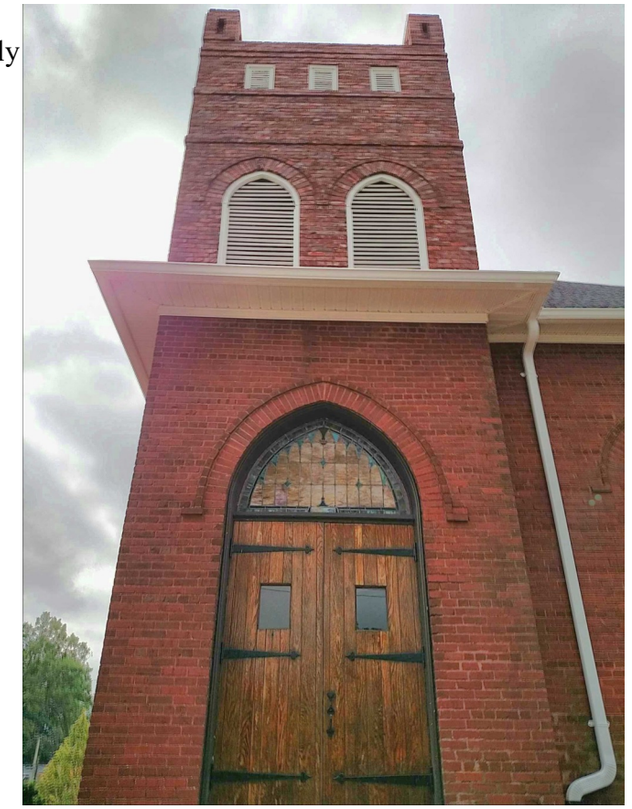
The tree knocked a large parapet from the tower through the roof, causing much damage in the back of the sanctuary as it brought down a 12 foot section of ceiling onto the back pews.

Tower bell was discovered to be undamaged when it was removed from all the brick and wood debris within the bell tower. It rings once more to announce worship of God!

Once the tower was cleaned out, this unique view of the sky was captured before a large tarpaulin was used to cover the top.

The bell tower was expertly reconstructed and the stained glass windows were lovingly cleaned and refreshed.





Pews were repaired, reconditioned and fitted with newly covered cushions. Pine floors were beautifully refinished and carpet runners installed in the aisles. Much of the wood trim was returned to it's original stained splendor. Walls, trim and ceiling received fresh paint. All of this serves to really brighten the space visually and enliven the sanctuary acoustically.